Scenting air and woodland. O friends, dear friends!
To-day let us open
The foreign Reader
And cheerfully read aloud:
"The geese gabble."
KITAHARA HAKUSHU. Just as Usual.

His feeling was that some kind fate Should hand him on a silver plate Large hunks of rich success; But things worked out as oft before Though Willie always wanted more He got a good deal less.

A Japanese Omar.

From the Japan Magazine

A spire unto a chimney spoke; You must not stain me with your smoke And then the chimney made reply:

"Hy day I show a rolling cloud, 'And when men truly understand lead them to the promised land."
McLANDBURGH WH.SON

A favorite son he had a dream.
A nightmare terrible and real The vision made his fences seem So weak they gave his heart a chili. Awake he thought he was the choice of all his party in his State, But in his dream he heard a voice That jeered at him and bade

A Favorite Dream.

And strikes the breezes of the lake; A bigger man will win the stake."
